The use of photodynamic therapy in actinic keratosis in comparison to cryotherapy and chemical peels

Published On: March 06, 2024 | Pages: 001 - 006

Author(s): Aneesa Arshad* and Mohammed Taiyyib

Photodynamic Therapy (PDT) is an effective treatment of actinic keratosis. 5-Aminolevulinic Acid (ALA) and Methyl Aminolevulinate (MAL) are commonly applied. However, there is a need to establish the quality of life after PDT treatment and potential conversion to squamous cell carcinomas. The objectives of the review were to compare the efficiency of PDT, the long-ter ...
